

RSC-BMCS International Travel Prize 2022

Announcement of Winners

The RSC Biological and Medicinal Chemistry Sector (BMCS) is pleased to announce the winners of the 2022 BMCS Travel Prize: Joseph Anderson, University of Strathclyde; Karina Chan, University of Strathclyde; Maria Rodriguez-Rios, University of Edinburgh; Harry Wilders, University of Strathclyde.

The BMCS introduced the International Travel Prize programme in 2014 as an initiative to support, encourage and develop the training of next-generation research leaders. The winners receive funding of up to £2000 to support their attendance at, and travel to, high impact international conferences relevant to their projects. The judges were extremely impressed with the quality of all the applications for the 2022 prize, and together with all the members of the BMCS committee, would like to congratulate the winners, and sincerely thank all the participants for the excellence of their applications.

Information about applications for the 2023 BMCS Travel Prizes will be available later in the year, check www.rscbmcs.org or www.rsc.org/bmcs for further information.

A C Williams, Hon. Chairman, BMCS.
